“Six Dollar Sundays” Return at the National Museum of Crime & Punishment

Locals-Only Discount Welcomes residents to museum at reduced admission

This promotion excludes GROUP Bookings

WASHINGTON, D.C. – The large rallies have ended, the tourists have departed, and now local residents can come out of their homes to enjoy the streets of Washington once more. Local residents who’ve been hiding from the influx of out-of-towners now have an added reason to venture out into the city; the National Museum of Crime & Punishment (NMCP) is bringing back “Six Dollar Sundays”, a thank-you tribute to those who call the D.C. Metro area "home." From November 7th through December 19th, all local residents with proper ID will receive $6 admission to the museum anytime on Sundays.

“With all of the special events and added attention to Washington this year, it seems that the city was even more overwhelmed with tourists in these past few months,” states Janine Vaccarello, Chief Operating Officer of the National Museum of Crime & Punishment. “Now that the city has settled, we want to offer residents the chance to explore our museum and all the new offerings that we’ve acquired in the past year.”

The discounted admission price offers guests access to what is described by Good Morning America as a “must see for CSI fans.” The three-floor, 25,000 square foot museum includes a crime lab, the filming studios for America's Most Wanted, and over 100 interactives on America's favorite subject. New 2010 exhibit additions include Ted Bundy's 1968 Volkswagen Beetle and the 1990 Unsolved Art Heist at Isabella Stewart Gardner Museum.

The museum is located at 575 7th Street NW between E and F Streets in downtown Washington, D.C. at the Gallery Place/Chinatown Metro (Arena exit) and online at www.crimemuseum.org. For ticket and facility rental information, call (202) 393-1099.

To take advantage of this discount, residents must bring proof of residence at a DC, MD, or VA address and state they are wanting a $6 Sunday ticket. Standard Sunday hours in November and December are 10AM-7PM; check the museum’s website for any scheduled closings.

About the National Museum of Crime & Punishment

The NMCP’s mission is to provide guests of all ages with a memorable insight into the history of crime, crime fighting and solving, and the consequences of committing a crime in America through a captivating interactive, entertaining, and educational experience. Some of the attractions include a CSI Experience, a high-speed chase simulator and FBI shooting range, Americas Most Wanted studio, and a room where visitors can try to hack into a computer, crack a safe and test their Wild West shooting range. The museum is located on 7th Street NW between E and F Streets in downtown Washington, D.C. at the Gallery Place/Chinatown Metro (Arena exit). For more information, visit www.crimemuseum.org.
