

National Museum of Crime & Punishment Shows Love to Residents with “Six Dollar Sundays” Locals-Only Discount

Valid: January 10 - March 14, 2010

The National Museum of Crime & Punishment (NMCP) wants to thank those who call the Metro D.C. area “home” by offering a “Six Dollar Sundays” to locals only.

The discount is for residents of DC, MD, and VA. Starting January 10th all local residents with proper ID will receive $6 admission to the Museum anytime on Sundays.

Offer is not valid with any other coupons or discounts. Offer is first-come-first-served and is not valid through web ticketing or will-call purchases. Good for up to six people (all must be local residents).

The discounted admission price offers guests access to interact with a realistic forensics lab, create ID cards and fingerprinting, and use a lie detector test. Visitors to the museum will also experience first-hand the skills necessary to fight crime through such interactive components as a simulated FBI shooting range and high-speed police chase simulators. Artifacts include J. Edgar Hoover’s badge, John Dillinger’s car, the 1967 Hollywood film “Death Car” of Bonnie and Clyde, and the collections of Poncho Villa and Jesse James.
